

Working with Young People from a Migrant Background

One in four Australian young people are from a refugee or migrant background. Their engagement as active citizens in Australian society has significant and long-term benefits for each young person, their families, communities, and a diverse and socially cohesive Australia.

However, young people from refugee and migrant backgrounds often face particular challenges in accessing the support and opportunities they need to navigate the demands of settling in a new country. Their settlement needs are distinct from adults and they commonly face additional and more complex transitions than their Australian-born counterparts.

This one day workshop will provide an overview of the MYAN National Youth Settlement Framework (NYSF), a national framework for supporting the settlement of young people from refugee and migrant backgrounds in Australia.

The workshop is guided by the NYSF, and will enable participants to respond more effectively to the specific needs of young people from refugee and migrant backgrounds in order to support their active and sustained participation in Australian society.

Who should attend?

People working with young people from a refugee background, including asylum seekers. Appropriate for people working within an education, health or community setting.
